

Leeds Loves Food festival returns

Food lovers have a treat in store this summer when the Leeds Loves Food festival returns, the highlight being a live cookery demonstration from Saturday Kitchen's James Martin. The festival, now in its second year, will be taking place across the city during the first weekend in July. The event will feature a healthy dose of cookery demonstrations and masterclasses, food sampling, celebrity chefs plus special offers and promotions. The festival is a collaboration between Marketing Leeds, Leeds City Centre Management Team, Leeds Restaurant Association and Leeds City College. Cath Follin, City Centre Manager said: "Leeds has seen some major developments in the food and drink sector in recent years, with award-winning restaurants and the opening of many new venues."

